Industrial applicability (IA)	Claims	1-14	YES

2. Citations and explanations (Rule 70.7)

Reference is made to the following document:

D1: KR 2002-0038176 A (23 May 2002)

The present invention relates to a method and an apparatus for providing online games by connecting online game servers comprising clients, general game servers and a connection server through a network so that users of different game servers can exchange through the connection server the user information provided by each game server, and that the users can play online games with other users by using their own user characters.

D1 relates to a role-playing game, characterized by providing an Internet user with a character, which can be used on the Internet, based on the basic information of the Internet user, and raising the rank of the user and changing the character according to the mileage accumulated by the user.

The present invention differs from the cited invention of D1 in that the Internet user of the present invention can play games with other Internet users who belong to different servers by using user characters, whereas the Internet users of D1 can do Internet activities, such as playing games, only in the same server by using characters.

Therefore, the subject matter of claims 1-14 is considered to be novel, to involve an inventive step, and to be industrially applicable.
